

Hope Trust Site Visit done by: Jayasree Raman and Ajay Raman

Date Visited: August 12 , 2022

Me and my younger son Ajay Raman visited Annambedu shelter home for disabled kids. We were welcomed by Mrs. Nagarani (Founder and Managing Trustee) and were given a tour of the campus by a hope staff. The last time I visited this place about two years ago, it was under construction. It was amazing to see the way the facility was built, with great attention to details to provide the best care possible for these children.

There were around 40 children at the time I visited. I met with all the staff members. I was then explained how the vocational training program works by showing me around the different classrooms and detailing to me how these children are trained during these programs. Later, they took us to a music room where a few boys played their favorite instruments like percussion and guitar. Then, I met some underprivileged women (some of them are mothers of these children) who were getting trained in blouse stitching. It was heartwarming to see how these children and women are taken care of by providing them with these opportunities.
