PROJECT OVERVIEW:

Development: Injustice of Justice, Delhi

Project Location: New Delhi

Project Duration: Ongoing

Many times, our society has assumed the criminal and the crime to be one, ostracising the individual. The ripples of the incarceration of this individual are felt not just by the one imprisoned but, with the same intensity, affect all familial ties adversely and holistically. In India, this interaction between the Law and the Individual has also been influenced by the socio-economic strata one belongs to, where the majority in prisons have been identified as belonging to low-income households. It is in this scenario that hopelessness leads to succumbing to a perpetual cycle of crime as a viable source of livelihood.

It is this frustration and hopelessness that the Samarpan Foundation aims to alleviate for the prisoners and their families in Delhi by providing viable methods aimed at growth and self-sustenance. Samarpan Foundation takes a multi-pronged approach to provide parallel assistance to the inmates as well as their families that is geared toward creating an inclusive environment of development.

In our interactions with these families, we came across other individuals and families that were in dire need of essentials such as food, medical aid, and educational support. To that end, Samarpan Foundation has been providing both the immediate requirement of sustenance and creating opportunities for long-term empowerment.

Beneficiary Profile:

Total no. of beneficiaries: 100 approximately

Tihar Jail is India's most high-security facility and the largest prison complex in South Asia comprising 10 prisons. The population of the prison complex is currently around 17000 prisoners in a space meant for 10000. Statistics have shown a link between criminality, poverty, and lack of education. Most prisoners incarcerated in the prisons have been found to hail from economically disadvantaged backgrounds with a high rate of illiteracy. Samarpan Foundation locates the family of these prisoners, in the city of Delhi.

Around 77% of the prison population earned an annual income of less than Rs. 50,000 at the time of their arrest while 27% of the prisoners never had any education. Most importantly, 69% of the prison population is 'undertrials', awaiting trial, or sometimes imprisoned for several years due to delays in the justice delivery system.

We work to uplift the living conditions of the families of inmates and to facilitate their journey towards empowerment and self-sustained, independent lives.

Project Objectives:

The purpose of this project is to make the families of prisoners and other severely suffering families self-reliant by providing support towards the education of the children, provision of monthly ration kits, access to skill training, support for higher education, and financial support for emergencies such as medical exigencies, rent, etc. The project aims to provide long-term support as it has been observed that the journey towards self-reliance for these families takes a longer duration due to having little exposure to the outside world. This is further enhanced by enabling them to earn as well as gain self-respect, confidence, and financial and social independence. Supporting the prisoners in enhancing various skills through skill development programmes in the jails is also one of the major goals of the project. This will help the prisoners become self-reliable upon their release from the jails and will give them a direction to pursue in the future.

Steps taken:

- Volunteers provide a support structure for the families, including nutritional, medical, financial, educational, and emotional support.
- Members of the families are provided with the tools needed to gain financial and self-empowerment. Some have now become independent, have opened bank accounts, and have started to save.
- Education and vocational training support have enabled adult family members and potential breadwinners to gradually become self-sustaining and gain confidence to support their families.
- Families suffer from stress, trauma, and anxiety due to the imprisonment of the family member. Therefore, group support therapy is provided to the families, and support groups are started for families to meet and talk about their traumas.
- Individualised needs are responded to; for example, by providing sewing machines as a potential source of income as well as clothing and household items.
- Skill development training in various fields like personality development, English proficiency, computer literacy, etc. based on the needs.
- Functions are organized where festivals and special events are celebrated with the families.

Deliverables:

- Monthly rations kits are provided for the family which ensures their survival as they start their journey towards self-development.
- Educational support in the form of school and tuition fees, academic supplies like stationery, school bags, and textbooks, are provided to the children as per their requirements.
- Financial aid is given on a need basis for emergencies such as surgeries, rent for homes, etc.
- Medical help is provided to families, including medicines, testing, treatments, and funds for operations.
- Equipment for skill and personal development are provided on a need basis such as sewing machines, guitars, etc.
- Medical camps are conducted intermittently for the beneficiaries and basic medicines are provided as prescribed.
- Additional support to the incarcerated individuals by organizing skill development training in jails and further assisting in getting jobs after their release from the jails by either providing them loans or any other support.

Activity and Outcomes:

- The beneficiary groups are identified, and motivated, and their capacities are appropriately enhanced through suitable training.
- Children supported under this program are able to competently complete their educational journeys and aim to undertake higher education.
- Provision of support for basic healthcare and nutrition has resulted in the families being able to procure basic necessities without worry of their survival.
- The families are successfully finding alternative sources of income with more members participating in the workforce.
- The proposed intervention adopts capacity building for vocational skills as well as awareness of gender norms and financial inclusion.
- Other services offered include counseling sessions, motivational talks, and creativity workshops for the beneficiaries.
