THE IMPACT

+36pts

On the topic primary children struggled with most (understanding their own triggers), our program delivered a 36-point jump.

+30pts

Middle school and high school students gained the ability to identify when someone else is acting unsafely, rising from 55% to 85%, a critical safeguarding skill.

+34pts

Middle school and high school students who couldn't recognise unsafe online behaviour jumped from 47% to 81% in digital boundary awareness.

+31pts

Understanding and respecting boundaries improved by 31 points, with primary schoolers reaching 97%.

HIGHLIGHTS

Partnerships

- Our first advisory project, moving from direct engagement to institutional systems
- Reviewed Asar's existing Child Protection Policy
- Built a Code of Conduct, Safety Checklist, and Escalation Matrix
- Delivered a training session to support real-world implementation

TEACHFORINDIA

- Extended our child safety work across select TFI-partnered schools in Chennai
- 5 structured sessions conducted with students, focused on personal safety and boundaries
- Created a safe space for students to ask questions and learn how to seek support when needed

Developing Child Safety Workbooks

- Meet Ira, the character who guides children through our K-2 workbooks
- Moving from one-time sessions to sustained, year-round learning
- K-12 curriculum, planned to be designed as companion workbooks across grades

Hello...

STORIES THAT MATTER

When 13-year-old Aditi attended a Safe Schools session, she noted down a child helpline number, unsure if she would ever need it. A few weeks later, when a peer shared an experience of physical punishment outside school, Aditi recognised it as a violation of their rights. With growing confidence, she stood by her friend and together, they called the helpline and reported the incident. What began as awareness in a classroom became a moment of action led by a student who chose not to stay silent.

Awareness is leading to action.

STORIES THAT MATTER

A teacher quietly observed one of our body safety sessions from the back of the classroom. That evening, she went home and, for the first time, spoke to her young daughter about body safety. She later shared that she had always wanted to have the conversation but never knew how to begin until she saw it modelled in the classroom. Stories like these remind us that when we empower children, we often give the adults around them the confidence to protect them too.

When teachers feel supported and connected, safe practices become part of everyday school life.

VOICES FROM THE FIELD

“ Some of our primary grade students initially said they did not want Safe Schools sessions as they were uncomfortable with the topic. In the recent class, the same students were actively participating and confidently answering questions. This shows the effectiveness of your sessions.

Ms. Kavi Arasi

Sarva Seva Nursery and Primary School, Chithirapettai

“ Only because of your class, I learned how to use menstrual products correctly, and now I don't feel scared to talk about menstruation anymore.

“ You presented to our children with great clarity. The concepts on child safety were easy to understand, supported by effective visuals, and your engaging session built strong understanding across the school. We truly appreciate this opportunity.
