

From Sanjeev Ranganathan, Asha Volunteer's Telephone conversation

One of our multi tasking (teacher/treasurer/outside school contact) Sukanya got married earlier this month.

The real good news for us of course is that her husband is supporting of her efforts at Seva Chakkara and she is going to continue her efforts at the orphanage :-).

The wedding was an opportunity for all the alumni of Seva Chakkara to visit the orphanage and my mother met all of them at the wedding. Some heartening news is that three of the Alumni that I was most concerned about are doing well. Sivakumar did take and clear the one subject exam that was holding him in grade X. He has also decided to continue his education and is now planning to do class XI. His brother had a lot more soul searching to do, but has now taken up a job as a carpenter. With all earning members in their family Sivakumar's family is able to back him in his decision to study further. Jothi is enrolled full time in the diploma of tailoring. She appears to enjoy it and is confident that she can take it up as a profession. She is being supported by her grandmother.
