Background & Mission

Bhoomiheen Sewa Samiti is a voluntary service society operating primarily in the Aau village of Uttar Pradesh, India. The organization's guiding philosophy remains steadfast: "The Society's primary aim is the upliftment of the poorest and most oppressed sections of the society. Landless laborer is at the bottom of the economic ladder, and Dalits are at the bottom of the social ladder, which puts landless Dalits at the bottom of both the social and economic ladders".

Educational and Operational Context

The school provides crucial educational infrastructure for the region, typically managing around 18 cycles and maintaining a focused student-to-teacher ratio with no more than 35-36 children per class.

A notable operational challenge is funding distribution: while the government funds the mid-day meal and teacher salaries for the middle school, the Samiti must independently fund these expenses for both the primary and high school levels. Despite these hurdles, the academic outcomes remain strong. The school utilizes the NIOS board syllabus for high school (classes 9 and 10), which has previously yielded a 100% success rate in the class 10 board examinations
